Dear Sangster Community,

Happy New Year! Hope you all had a wonderful time with family and friends over the winter break. We have all returned from the two week vacation energized with a renewed sense of purpose and dedication. It's amazing what a few days of vacation will do for us all. I hope that among your New Year's Resolutions is a resolve to spend some time each day reading or writing with your child. Setting aside as little as fifteen minutes per day can have a very positive effect on their academic achievement. Reading aloud to younger children helps model reading strategies, invites them into the world of books and prepares them for their own future reading endeavors. Reading aloud to older students helps to improve their current reading capabilities. Setting an example of writing and reading yourself lets your child(ren) know that you value and believe these are important life-long skills. A New Year's resolution to share literacy with your child is one that you will not regret.

We continue to appreciate your support and all the time you spend with your child to reinforce the importance of his or her education. It makes a tremendous difference to your children when they know that their progress is important to you.

Happy New Year!

Sincerely,

Lisa M. Reddel

Principal
